An El Paso, Texas, bowhunter who became separated from others in his party late Sunday afternoon has been found.

Jason Hunt, 29, became disoriented near White Horse Mountain east of Mimbres, according to a spokesman from the Grant County Sheriff's Department.

Hunt was found early this morning by personnel from the Grant County Search and Rescue team about two miles from where he was last seen.

According to John O'Loughlin of the search and rescue team, Hunt, who did not have matches to make a fire, had made a small shelter of pine boughs. He was able to signal searchers with a flashlight, O'Loughlin said.
